although most international lawyers assumed that the distribution of the land surface of the earth between states was more or less final after the end of decolonization recent practice has disproved this assumption eritrea separated from ethiopia and new states were created out of the former soviet union the former yugoslavia and the former czechoslovakia there is no reason to believe that these events form the end of the creation of new states numerous communities within existing states claim a right to full separate statehood on the basis of their entitlement to an alleged right to self determination however in most cases the international community rejected such claims to statehood even if the territorial entity satisfied the traditional criteria for statehood on the other hand in other cases including some of those mentioned above the international community acknowledged the statehood of entities which clearly failed to meet these criteria in the light of the above mentioned developments this book examines the modern law of statehood and in particular the role of the law of self determination in the process of the formation of states in international law the study shows that the law of statehood has changed considerably since the establishment of the united nations it is argued that the law of self determination is particularly relevant for explaining the international community s position regarding the general recognition or the general denial of statehood of different territorial entities under contemporary international law on the 10th of october 2002 the international court of justice delivered the bakassi decision which amongst other things excised the resource rich land and maritime territory of bakassi from nigeria and transferred its legal title to cameroon these two countries under the auspices of the united nations established the mechanism of the cameroon nigeria mixed commission to honour and implement their obligations under the icj decision over a decade after the icj decision this volume brings together academics and practitioners to assess the impact of this decision and the challenges and issues that have been raised in the course of its implementation hailed by some as a model of preventive diplomacy and a blueprint for the future this timely assessment illuminates the difficulties in imposing such controversial decisions and considers whether this type of mixed commission is an adequate mechanism for implementing them
